As the grip of Nazi terror tightens around their village, Yaffa and Judith, along with their family, witness unspeakable atrocities. Their home is destroyed, their loved ones are taken away, and their lives are shattered.

In a desperate act of defiance, the two sisters decide to flee, knowing that the journey ahead will be fraught with danger. They leave behind their parents and embark on a harrowing journey that tests their limits.

Unbreakable Bonds in the Face of Adversity

Throughout their perilous journey, Yaffa and Judith's bond proves unbreakable. They face unimaginable challenges together, relying on each other for strength and support.

They endure hunger, cold, and exhaustion, always looking out for one another. They witness horrors that no one should ever have to experience, yet their resolve never wavers.

Their unwavering love is a beacon of hope in the face of unimaginable darkness. It sustains them during their darkest moments and gives them the courage to carry on.

From Ghetto to Concentration Camp

Yaffa and Judith's flight takes them through a labyrinth of horrors. They find refuge in a Jewish ghetto, where they witness firsthand the brutality of Nazi tyranny.

Eventually, they are captured and sent to the infamous Auschwitz-Birkenau concentration camp. There, they endure unspeakable suffering and witness firsthand the horrors of the Holocaust.

Despite the unimaginable horrors they endure, Yaffa and Judith never lose their hope. They cling to life with unwavering determination, knowing that their bond will see them through.
